

Driver found innocent

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

A Dearborn driver was found innocent of any involvement in the 1993 traffic death of a Romulus man, who was operating an all-terrain vehicle on Middlebelt road at 12:20 in the morning.

Recorder's Court Judge Susan Neilson ruled on July 25 there was insufficient evidence to place Fred Secrest, 36, of Dearborn, behind the wheel of the vehicle that struck and killed Joseph Wayne Celske, 21, last Nov. 5.

Romulus Traffic Officer Jerome Yoscovits was one of three state witnesses in the case, but there were no witnesses available who could testify they saw Secrest in the car.

Secrest had been issued a traffic summons for leaving the scene of a serious personal injury accident. If convicted of the offense, Secrest could have been sentenced to five years in state prison.

The defendant never gave a statement to police and never took the witness stand at the trial.

The victim, who had reportedly just left work, was driving his four-wheel vehicle across Middlebelt (west to east) when he was hit broadside and killed, police said.

Yoscovits said a misty rain was falling at the time and that hampered witnesses seeing who was driving Secrest's vehicle.

Witnesses sought

A 41-year-old Taylor driver was arraigned last Friday on the charge that he left the scene of a fatal accident involving a 57-year-old Romulus pedestrian.

Gary Lee Sipps of Taylor was released on his personal bond pending an Aug. 10 pre-trial hearing in the 34th District Court.

The victim, Charles Summers, a Romulus painter, was killed about 1 a.m. July 16, as he walked along Van Born Road near the mobile home park where he lived.

Romulus Traffic Officer Jerome Yoscovits is asking any potential witnesses to the accident to call him at 941-8718.

Wayne-Westland School budget $1.3 million short

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Wayne-Westland Community Schools administrators recently received the state preliminary figures which reveal a $1.3 million shortfall in the anticipated district funding for the 1994-95 school year, according to Chief Fiscal Officer Patricia Brand.

Although program cuts are anticipated, proposed cuts are not expected to be discussed with the school board members until Wednesday afternoon, Brand said.

"Something will have to be done. We will have to balance the budget," Brand said.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Larry Thomas said it was too early to tell what he will be proposing to the board members as cuts or a possible millage campaign. However, Thomas said he expects a proposal to be discussed at the Aug. 8 regular board meeting.

With a fund balance of less than $3,000, board members were aware of the possible shortage of funds when they approved the 1994-95 budget in early July.

"You'll have some difficult decisions to make if anything comes back worse than anticipated," former district Chief Fiscal Officer Randy Liepa said. "It's very difficult to run a $90 million budget with no reserve."

The first budget drafted under the new state finance reform bill left the district with a fund balance of $2,965, millions less than the previous year starting fund balance of $6,762,382.

"The budget we presented is balanced, but offers no reserve for the board to fall back on. Although the state did help us out ... we still have less funds than any district that touches us," Liepa said.

The state funding was based on the past two-year average of revenues.

"The state based their calculations on a set of information, which by law, we had to approve July 1. After that date, the state came out with some changes that we could not necessarily anticipate," Brand said.

There were three significant funding changes, according to Brand:

- Compensatory education monies were initially promised to the district for children with special needs. This money was eliminated with a recent change in state law.

- The main anticipated funding change is the center program deductions for retirement and Federal Income Contribution Act (FICA). This program was supposed to be funded 100 percent by the county, however, the method of funding calculation changed. Now the district will receive that much less in state money for the special education programs they provide. Brand said she has appealed this change to the state.

- Fund equity compensation has also been diminished from the original anticipation. Districts who were operating on fund equity were supposed to be reimbursed for some of the spent fund equity, however, this amount was reduced to 15.1 percent.

Well owners to seek city permit

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

As city legal expenses escalate past the $288,000 mark, it was announced that the Environmental Disposal Services (EDS) company would begin seeking a city zoning permit sometime in September.

The zoning issue has been debated by EDS and city officials for more than a year, as EDS seeks to open the first state commercial non-hazardous and hazardous liquid injection wells on property on Wahrman Road, just off Grand Road.

The city contends that the more than 4,000 foot deep injection well project is located in the wrong zone. The land the already constructed well is situated on is listed as M1 (light industrial). The city position is that it should instead be located in a MT2-zone (for industrial transportation).

The city of Romulus won a recent decision from Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Claudia House Morcom, which stated that the city zoning regulations pre-empted state Department of Natural Resources and federal Environmental Protection Agency permits.

Following Morcom's ruling, Mayor Beverly McAnally urged EDS to file for a zoning permit through the city Zoning Board of Appeals seeking permission to operate an injection well at the Wahrman Road site.

EDS attorney Norman Hyman is on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

A spokeswoman for the city building department said that possible dates in September would be discussed by the ZBA on Wednesday night and hopefully an initial date would be set by the board at that time. A city legal official said it appeared that multi-dates would ultimately have to be chosen to cover the issue.

The city administrators admitted spending more than $288,181 in legal expenses in battling the injection well issue through May, with more than $250,000 of that expense attributed to the Dykema Gossett law firm specializing in environmental issues.

Another $22,000 was billed by City Attorney Barry Seifman, with smaller amounts being charged by court reporters, planners, record copy service units and video operators.

Both sides admitted if the issue goes to a full trial, the legal costs easily will double for both sides.

School millage vote planned

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus Community School District voters will be asked to support a 3 mill property tax hike plan on Sept. 20, that the school administration claims will actually give homeowners an overall 2 mill decrease in their property taxes.

The millage proposal follows a 30 mill slashing of Romulus school funding earlier this year as a result of Proposal A, a plan approved by voters in March.

The millage proposal was set up by Joel Carr, assistant school superintendent for finance and operations, who stated the plan would raise funds to eliminate the school district's deficit ($2.1 million), as well as provide funds to enhance the educational programs for three years.

In addition, Carr's proposal states "our homeowners will realize a net 2 mill decrease in their property taxes."

Listed under the school district's budget implications was the notice, the "district will realize a revenue enhancement of about $860,000 for each of the three years (1994, 1995 and 1996)."

The bulk of the money raised by the millage will come from business and industry.

The millage request was approved 6-1, with Trustee Deborah Hoffman casting the dissenting vote, at the school board special financial study session Monday night. Board members were careful not to blame the Proposal A issue for the district's red ink problems, but were united in their feelings that a millage victory was needed to protect educational programs.

Retired Romulus Fire Marshall dies at 68

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Retired Romulus Fire Marshall Charles H. Bradley Jr., 68, died July 31, 1994 in Northville. He also served briefly as Romulus Fire Chief during 1973-74.

Mr. Bradley was fire marshall from 1988-91. He also was a former fire inspector with Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. and worked for the utility company for 33 years.

Born on Dec. 12, 1925 in Dearborn, he also was a member of the Wayne County Fair Board.

Current Fire Chief William Greenslait said he became acquainted with Mr. Bradley, while he (Greenslait) was still employed by the Taylor Fire Department.

After being appointed Romulus Fire Chief on July 1, 1987, Greenslait said, "Chuck taught me everything I needed to know about the Romulus Fire Department and the city itself. He was totally dedicated to this city and worked hard to keep it safe."

Mr. Bradley joined the Romulus Fire Department as a volunteer in 1960, Greenslait said, and was promoted to station captain in 1961. In 1968 he was named assistant fire chief and served as fire chief in 1973-74.

He returned to Michigan

Joel Carr

Hoffman explained Tuesday morning that she voted in opposition to the millage language slated for the Sept. 20 ballot question because it omitted stating that the millage was to pay for budget deficit elimination.

"I felt that not stating the budget deficit element made the millage question too ambiguous," Hoffman said.

"I support the millage and will work for its passage," Hoffman emphasized, "but feel the public should definitely know the reason the millage is being placed on the ballot in the first place."

Carr is on vacation and was not in attendance Monday night. But school administration officials plan a concentrated campaign to explain the cost savings for the homeowners in coming weeks.

The Sept. 20 date was set up, so that if the millage bid fails the voters test, it can be re-submitted on the ballot again in November. School officials

One Westland resident expressed his concerns about the amount of graffiti on city businesses and roads, asking Westland City Council members to "get it cleaned up."

"Graffiti is everywhere on Central City Parkway. It's on the Phar Mor building ... and on the road itself. I think it shows that gangs have control of this city and they can run rampant," resident David Reed said.

Westland Deputy Mayor George Gillies informed Reed of the new Youth Assistance "Graffiti Busters" program, a work release program which allows misdemeanor criminal offenders who are prosecuted in Westland 18th District Court to give back to the community by cleaning up gang graffiti from area businesses.

"They are doing the best they can. We ask the owners to wash it off or repaint it first. If they are unable to, we assist," Gillies said.

- George Gillies

The clean-up team has started painting in the area of Merriman and Ann Arbor Trail and plans to move next to the Merriman and Palmer roads area.

The Youth Assistance Program works with youths ages 7 to 16 who are identified as "at risk" for delinquency by parents, schools, police or other community agencies.

Anyone interested in donating paint, painting supplies, volunteering to paint or to supervise painting or having graffiti repainted on a business, please call the Westland Youth Assistance Program at 467-7904.

ROMULUS NEWS DIGEST

3 police cars will be sold

Three 1991 Chevrolet Caprice vehicles with high mileage formerly used by Romulus police officers were approved for sale to Welcome Motors of Chicago, Ill. by members of the City Council on Monday night.

Welcome Motors has agreed to purchase the cars for a price of $4,200 each.

Street marking contract awarded

City Council members awarded a $14,224 street marking contract to the Continental Contracting Co. Monday night.

City Finance Coordinator Lynn Conway said that Continental Contracting Co. of Mount Clemens was the only bidder of the 15 companies notified of the planned program.

Romulus company wins roofs pact

The M.W. Morss Roofing Inc. of Romulus was awarded a $16,974 contract for the replacement of roofs on two city buildings.

Morss Roofing won out over four other companies that presented bids on July 14, 1994.

The contract calls for the replacement of roofs on Fire Station No. 4 at 28777 Eureka Road and the Department of Public Works Maintenance Building at 36505 Bibbins Street.

Postal service cites police officer

Romulus Police Officer Donald Leonard has been cited by the U.S. Postal Service for the recovery of a law enforcement vehicle.

Postal Inspector C.W. Wilson notified Romulus Police Chief Robert Brown that one of their inspection vehicles was stolen from a Van Buren Township apartment complex parking lot on June 28.

A 9-1-1 call was quickly made to the Van Buren Police Department and message stating the vehicle was probably headed east on I-94 heading toward Detroit, Wilson said.

"Within a short time frame," Wilson continued, "Leonard conducted a vehicle stop, the vehicle was recovered and the suspect taken into custody."

Wilson said the postal service vehicle was filled with extensive state-of-the-art electronics.

Wilson commended Leonard for "his vigilance and swift response" which led to the recovery of the car.

Sidewalk work may be postponed

Romulus sidewalk ordinance regulations do not permit waivers, City Director of Building, Safety and Engineering Department David Paul informed the local GM Powertrain Division office.

Robert Ranka, GM Powertrain manager, had appeared earlier at a City Council meeting asking that the company be given a waiver on constructing new sidewalk as while an extension of the current building in under way.

Paul added that the sidewalk ordinance, however, does allow the auto firm to seek a deferment in the sidewalk construction to a later date.

Primary voting is light in Romulus

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Early returns in Romulus on Tuesday showed that voters' support for the new election machines was divided.

The new electronic ballot system, known as Accu-Vote, was a hit with election workers, but got mixed reviews from primary election voters.

Some voters actually missed the huge, black old-style voting machines that were nicknamed "dinosaurs" by election workers, because of their size, weight and the fact that it was so hard to get replacement parts for them when they broke down.

Election workers said some morning voters actually expressed a "thrill" when they filled out the paper election ballots and had the official forms accepted by the "electronic ballot box."

Some ballots were rejected, an election worker said, because the resident voted for too many candidates, some because they didn't darken their choice enough on the ballot and others were rejected because they voted for candidates in two parties.

In primaries it is mandatory that voters cast ballots for candidates of only one party. The winners of the party primary on Tuesday will square off in the November general election.

When the new style of voting procedures were explained to some prior to election day, workers said some voters claimed, "That sounds too confusing, I don't think I'm going to vote."

Others, many of them senior citizens, opted instead to vote by absentee ballot, workers said.

But an equal number of early voters on Tuesday enjoyed the security of the new system, as they were given new ballots if their first ones were invalidated by the computer. With the old system, if their ballot was rejected the votes were lost forever.

As on most primary election days, turnouts were small at Romulus precincts. Election totals and reactions to the Tuesday voting results (including the Democratic state representative and 34th District Court judgeship battles) will appear this Sunday in the Sunday Eagle and Enterprise.

Voters won't get another chance to use the new electronic equipment until November, as paper ballots will be used in the school millage election in September.

Fatality hearing delayed

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

Preliminary examination for a Romulus man, charged with two counts of operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor (OUIL) causing death was postponed until Aug. 25.

Alan Paul Gervais, 32, whose blood alcohol level measured .15 following the fatal collision, was charged in connection with the June 17 deaths of two Westland infants, according to Westland police officer James Dexter.

Gervais' bond was set at $10,000/10 percent, and if he posts it, he must attend Alcoholics Anonymous twice a week and is not permitted to drink alcohol pending preliminary examination in Westland 18th District Court. If convicted, the defendant faces a maximum sentence of up to 15 years in prison for each count.

Jimmiere Adams, 5 months old, and her sister, Laura Johnson, age 1, were pronounced dead at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne following the collision. Their brothers Gregory Adams, age 4, and Lee Johnson, age 3, were transported to the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor for treatment of serious closed head injuries, Westland police officer Steve Frazier said.

Their parents, whose names were not released by police, were discharged from the hospital and the Romulus man was treated and released from St. Mary's Hospital in Livonia.

None of the family members were wearing seat belts, Dexter said.

The fatal accident occurred just before 10 p.m. Friday night, when according to Dexter, the Romulus man was traveling westbound on Van Born Road near Admiral Street in a 1988 Ford F-150 pickup truck when the driver of the family's 1983 Chrysler New Yorker pulled out of a driveway.

When the two vehicles collided, the pickup truck was hit broadside and slid sideways upon impact. While the vehicle was sliding it struck the other vehicle a second time within 50 feet from the point of impact, Frazier said.

Poisoning case will resume

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Curtis Smith hopes to proceed today with the hearing into the possible poisoning of a 3-month old Romulus boy.

The hearing slated for July 27 was delayed for a week by 34th District Court Judge William Szlinis, after police revealed they had not yet received a chemical analysis determining if the carpet cleaner mixed with the infant's formula was toxic.

Romulus detectives have charged Christopher Magyar, 30, currently of Romulus, with first degree child abuse and assault with intent to murder.

Because of the delay, Magyar's attorney had asked if the $30,000 cash bail could be lowered to a security bond, so that his client could be released from Wayne County Jail pending the hearing.

He also claimed that the carpet cleaner is reportedly not toxic, but presented no evidence to support that claim.

The defendant's wife, Lynn, quickly stepped up before Szlinis last Wednesday and asked that her husband not be freed from jail at this time.

"He has called my mother's house in Detroit 25 times, our apartment 25 times and the office that supervises the apartment rentals 25 times, and they are very upset."

Lynn Magyar stated that she and her husband are in the process of divorce proceedings, and prior to being arrested "he stalked me and consistently left notes on my vehicle."

The defense attorney claimed prisoners' calls are monitored and said he doubted very much if Magyar could have made 25 calls to the same number at any time.

Szlinis said he would not lower the bail at this time.

Smith had originally asked for a three-week delay, but Szlinis reduced the request to one week.

The defendant's wife said she is not completely sure that Magyar is the father of the infant. "My first husband also could be the father," she explained.

Back in 1992 she also had pressed a child abuse complaint against Magyar charging abuse of her 2-year-old daughter.

"But he convinced me that he was right and the police were wrong, so I dropped the assault charge then. But I will not this time," she vowed.

She stated that Magyar mixed rug cleaner with her son Nicholas' formula and then placed some of the 10 bottles he made with those already in the refrigerator.

Lynn Magyar said her son vomited several times after drinking the rug cleaner-formula mixture and then displayed flu symptoms.

She took him to Children's Hospital in Detroit for treatment. Hospital officials then contacted Romulus police.

Magyar has admitted mixing the formula, police said, but claimed it was an accident that the cleaner (stored in a label-less container) was added.

$1.3 million tax abatement hearing scheduled on Sept. 6

A $1.4 million tax abatement hearing for Lear Seating Corp. located on Eureka Road will be conducted at 7 a.m. Sept. 6 by the members of the Romulus City Council.

Mark W. Simpson, controller of the Lear Seating Corp., informed the council members that the firm planned to add 13,000 square feet to the Plant II building to allow for more storage and a new work design. The company currently employs about 420 workers. No additional hirings are expected in the next two years, council members were told.

In other council action, a truck stop-restaurant combination for the northwest corner of Ecorse and Inkster roads was approved.

Imah A. Farhat appeared before council members to ask for a special use approval for the six acres at that location to erect what will be called the "Airport Truck Plaza."

The plaza will include a truck fuel station, truck wash, truck lube and a restaurant that will feature Greek, Mediterranean and American foods.

Ellis Pennington

Farhat said that the restaurant (formerly Memories) will seat more than 100 people and will include about 12,000 square feet.

A building that once housed a business known as Granny's will be demolished, he said.

The special use request was approved by a 6-0 vote, with Councilman William Wadsworth absent.

Meanwhile a request by the Marriott Corp. to add Marriott Hotel Services Inc. as a co-licensee of the Romulus Marriott facility located at 30559 Flynn Drive was approved.

At the same time, Paige Koerbel, Romulus Marriott general manager, said the hotel is also asking for a dance permit, new outdoor service permit and additional portable bar permits.

Koerbel said the outdoor service permit would allow the hotel to serve alcoholic beverages in the hotel patio area if the need arose.

Councilman Ellis Pennington demanded to know if the Marriott planned to add Go-Go dancers to their entertainment line. Koerbel said, "No, we just want to add the availability of outdoor ballroom dancing if such a request is made."

Pennington said, "I have no problem with ballroom dancing...but I do not support any bedroom dancing plans."

The council also approved a plan for an addition on the Fellowship Hall and parking lot of the Parks Memorial AME Church on Grover Street.

The special land use and site plan approval was urged by Councilman Jimmie Raspberry. It was approved 6-0.

Employers list desirable work traits

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

If you have a positive attitude, can follow directions and are creative and flexible, you are just what the boss is looking for.

Prospective employers at the Wayne County Community College-sponsored Job/Career Fair shared their views on which traits are the most sought after in job seekers.

Dr. Hattie Johnson, dean of the Western Center, is impressed with prospective employees who "follow directions, have a positive attitude, are creative, have initiative and are flexible."

"People like this would be an asset to any employer," Dr. Johnson said.

Marge Provan of Manpower believes those who are reliable and take their work seriously are the most desirable employees.

"We have a variety of different jobs. Some need training in certain areas, such as computers or office skills, but in some instances training can be done on the job," she said. "Everyone has the potential to be a good employee."

Mike Predieri of KLLM Transport Services, Inc. trucking company, said the passage of the North American Free Trade Agreement has accelerated the need for truck drivers and the field is open to those who qualify.

"You need to have a desire to work and to be your own boss," Predieri said. "A person has to be independent, but also able to follow instructions. Of course, they need good driving records."

Predieri said computers and sophisticated equipment has made truck driving more complicated and require a greater variety of skills.

Ron Talbot, of J.H. Hunt trucking company, said prospective truck drivers need to understand the business and be willing to be away from home for periods of time.

John Breen of the Michigan Employment Security Commission said employers are focusing on team players when they do their hiring.

"Employers want to know if the prospective employee can get along with co-workers," Breen said. "There is a high cost to employers if the wrong employee is hired - up to $20,000."

Breen noted that the automobile companies are seeking team workers, something that was not considered a decade or two ago.

Sgt. Kevin Cornelius, an Army recruiter from the Westland recruiting center, said the military service is seeking people with high school diplomas who do well on their tests and have no physical problems.

"We'd like top quality students," said Sgt. Cornelius. "The Army offers all types of jobs for all types of people."

Staff Sgt. Michael Cox noted that disciplined individuals are sought.

"If they don't have the discipline, we can provide that," Cornelius said.

"I like to see self-motivated people," said Michael Long, recreation director for Van Buren Township.

"We hire a lot of seasonal

Long described the workers during one recent summer as

American elected Salvation Army leader

For the first time in history, the international Salvation Army High Council has elected an American-born officer as general.

Commissioner Paul A. Rader, currently the Territorial Commander of the Salvation Army in the USA Western Territory in Los Angeles, Cal., was elected on July 23 by the Christian group 44 member council.

Rader, 61, succeeds Bramwell Tillsley of Canada, who served less than a year but was forced to step down from the international office located in London because of serious health problems.

Rader served in numerous leadership positions in the U.S. and 22 years in Korea.

The Salvation Army was created more than 100 years ago in London by founder William Booth.

Resource director named

A Van Buren Township woman has been named director of human resources, a newly created department at First of Michigan Corporation.

Pamela J. O'Neill is a member of the Van Buren Township Economic Development Corporation, Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club, the Society of Human Resource Management and the American Compensation Association.

"The formation of a comprehensive human resources department is an important step as our firm strives to become the most professional, employee-friendly financial services operation in the Great Lakes region," said Steve Gasper Jr., president of First of Michigan. "Pamela O'Neill brings experience, responsiveness and a high energy level to our organization."

Her duties will be to design policies and programs to attract and retain the top talent for the firm and also to be responsible for training, recruiting and career path development programs.

O'Neill has a master's degree in labor and industrial relations and a bachelor of arts degree in business from Michigan State University. She was previously employed as a human resources manager for the American Automobile Manufacturers Association. She also was formerly employed as a senior research analyst for American Society of Employers in Southfield.

Glass art Sumpter artist designs stained glass windows

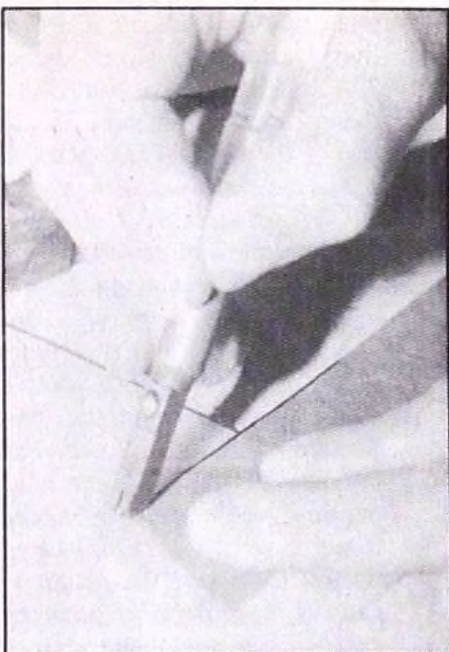

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

In her studio on Willis Road, Diane Eissinger creates award-winning traditional and contemporary art works from stained glass.

Her latest honor is a third-place award from the Stained Glass Association of America (SGAA) for an abstract hanging in blues and grays with ruby red accents.

"For its annual summer conference this year, the SGAA used the theme, Catch the Sun's Fire, for this exhibition. It was open to students and individual and 52 people entered panels in the competition," Essinger said.

While her award-winning panel is an abstract, many of her works are traditional pieces for church windows.

"Last summer, I did four windows for the Denton Road Methodist Church, and now I'm working on three windows for Faith Lutheran Church in Stony Creek, near Monroe,"

"Last summer, I did four windows for the Denton Road Methodist Church, and now I'm working on three windows for Faith Lutheran Church in Stony Creek, near Monroe."
- Diane Eissinger

Eissinger said.

She also created chapel windows for the Hospice headquarters on the campus of Madonna College in Livonia.

"I've been very busy. I've exhibited at the Ann Arbor Art Association Gallery, and at many glass shows," she said.

Her interest in church art began when she was a teacher in a parochial school, and she continues to utilize her past training in designing works which incorporate the liturgical colors and themes.

"I read a lot of books to gather information about the works that I do," she said.

Eissinger has been working with stained glass for 12 years.

"Previously, I sewed and painted, but stained glass was the first medium where I became proficient. After I sold my first piece, then I became very interested in continuing," she said. "My main focus is with the traditional kinds of stained glass work for churches, but I also enjoy doing abstracts - like the hanging that I submitted for the competition."

One of her pieces was available for purchase at the silent auction at the annual Belleville Area Council for the Arts Garden Party hosted by Chesley Odom.

Golf course, fire hall on agenda

Two proposed projects were on the Sumpter Township Board special meeting agenda yesterday.

First, was the study of two proposals for feasibility studies on the golf course, according to Administrator Glenn Bowles.

"We need to study the potential revenues from a golf course and what kind of amenities might be included in the project. Also, we will have to consider whether the township or a private firm will manage the facility," he said.

Bowles said the projected cost of a new fire hall also was under consideration.

"If the cost is more than $1 million, we'll have to do some soul searching to find the money," Bowles said. "We know that 1 mill will not provide enough money to finance a new fire hall and the operation of the fire department."

Details of the Aug. 3 meeting were not available at press time.

Job Fair

Employers seek workers

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
News Editor

Some individuals went to the Job/Career Fair at Wayne County Community College (WCCC) seeking full-time positions, while others were looking for part-time work until they return to school in the fall.

Tina Rogers, Tracey Cline and Ericka Stiltner came to the July 28 event at the WCCC Western Center to seek job opportunities on a short-term basis.

Tina and Ericka, both from Lincoln High School, were seeking jobs until Tina begins college and Ericka joins the Navy. Tracey, from Belleville High School, hoped to find a day care job.

Sheryl Dixon talked to WCCC instructor Miriam Nettles about health careers, especially in the dietetic technology field.

"It's a field that is opening up, especially in the gerontology area," said Nettles. "Because of requirements to monitor the diets of patients in care facilities, there will be a greater need for trained people in this field."

In addition to representatives from WCCC, staff members from Detroit College of Business, Siena Heights College and Central Michigan University, all of whom will schedule classes at the Western Center this fall, were on hand to answer questions and provide information.

ter, said they were looking for recruits who have high school degrees and do well on the testing. A variety of jobs are available, they said.

WCCC has degree and certificate programs in accounting, automotive service technology, aviation mechanics, business administration, criminal justice, computer information systems, dietetic technology and dental hygiene. The college also offers degrees and certificates in electrical/electronics, environment, emergency medical technology, gerontology, machine tool technology, mental health, mid-management and marketing, nursing, occupational therapy, office information systems, pre-engineering, urban teacher program and veterinary technology.

Career Planning and Placement offices are located at all WCCC campuses and offer a variety of employment related services to student and alumni. Professional staff is available to assist students to explore occupational opportunities and information, identify interests and abilities and develop employability skills.

Salvation Army chairman resigns

Van Buren Public Schools Superintendent James Richendollar has resigned as chairman of the advisory council of the Romulus-based Salvation Army Adult Rehabilitation Center.

Richendollar cited increased work pressures as the reason for his resignation as council chairman, but stated that he would remain an active member of the council.

Capt. Roger Senn of the Salvation Army said a new chairman will be appointed in September.

Who will win the 35th annual city golf crown?

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Who will wear the 35th annual City Championship golf crown?

That question will be answered this weekend when more than 50 amateur golfers from the area will converge upon Fellows Creek Golf Course to battle for the 1994 title.

And with many of the defending champs opting to play in the Michigan Publix, also being staged this weekend or attending the Buick Open in Flint, the race for the coveted crown will be a wide open affair, according to Bill Hawley, tournament manager.

Darrin Kent, the 1993 champ, along with five-time medalist Kevin Ryan (1983, 1985, 1987, 1988 and 1991) and two-time winner Matt Wiley (1985, 1989) are missing from the fold.

The 1994 tournament may usher in a new era.

"Looking over this year's field of entries I've noticed a lot of the regulars are sitting this tournament out," said Hawley. "However, there are some golfers who are in that I am feel certain will be among the contenders."

Hawley said that among the favorites are Westland golfer Murray Brooks, who has challenged the front runners in the past.

"Also, don't count out Mark Morton, a Wayne golfer who has won that city's title a few years back."

Hawley said that he would not be surprised to see an "unknown" surface as medalist. "This definitely looks like a year where anyone could take it all."

The tournament is cosponsored by The Associated Newspapers and the parks and recreation departments of the participating cities of Canton, Westland, Wayne, and Inkster.

The tournament also will determine the make up of the team a participating city will send to the state parks and recreation finals. The state championships will be conducted sometime in September.

The low five scorers from each of the cities are eligible to play on the city team. All

Driver makes history

Belleville race car driver Scott Kalitta made history last week.

Kalitta became the first Top Fuel driver in National Hot Rod Association history to win four consecutive National events.

Kalitta's fourth consecutive win came in the NHRA Autolite Nationals at Sears Point International Raceway.

The 32-year-old Belleville native defeated former Winston Champion Kenny Bernstein in the final round 4.802 to 12.117.

Connie Kalitta, Scott's father and teammate, defeated Stevie Foster of Adkins, Texas in the first round of action. En route to that victory, Kalitta's left rear tire blew out causing severe damage to the vehicle.

The 56-year-old Ypsilanti resident was uninjured in the incident. The car, which remained upright, could not be repaired in time for the second round of competition.

Scott remains in the lead for the Winston Top Fuel Competition.

Schedules, please

With prep gridders scheduled to check into camp next week, can the high school football and fall sports season be far behind?

Yes, it is that time of the year when coaches look over their rosters to see who's coming back and hope that the holdovers and the newcomers have the talent to make that wait-for-next-year prediction come true.

Whether this is the Year of the Lion or the Tiger or the Rocket, only time will tell.

Until then, The Associated Newspapers sports staff is urging local high school directors to mail (or drop off) their fall schedules. If there are any changes in the coaching alignment, please include the home telephone number of the new coach so that the ANP staff can contact them.

Mail scheduled to: Associated Newspapers, Sports Desk, 35540 Michigan Avenue, Wayne, Mich. 48184.

For further information, telephone the ANP sports desk at 729-4000.

All-Star softball lineup

From a field of 16 teams which participated in the annual Patrolman Len Anderson Memorial Softball Tournament, 12 players were selected to the All-Tournament Team. Named as the Most Valuable Player is Dan Reigmyre, who is joined on the team by Superior players - John Hocking, Mike Jusino and Jeff Sheeran. Ford Adray is represented on the All-Star squad by Tony Anzenberger, Terence McDaniel and Terry Taylor, while Westland-based J & K Transportation put Scott Nastally, Greg Tome and Rick Wayne in the lineup. Rich Browe, of Critter Control, and Jason Broyles, of Plumbers and Pipefitters, round out the lineup. Superior beat Adray in the finals to win the invitational title. ANP photo by Kimberly Woloskie

They are perfect

Canton crowns tennis champs

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

It took two days of hard-hitting competition, but six determined netters surfaced last week as champions in their divisions in the annual Canton Parks and Recreation Tennis Tournament.

"We had a good turnout," noted Bob Dates, parks and recreation supervisor. "And the weather cooperated."

In the girls' 16-19 age group, Olive Ikeh turned back opponent Aubri Sheremet in two sets. Ikeh took the first set 6-1, then sewed up the title with a 6-3 victory in the final set.

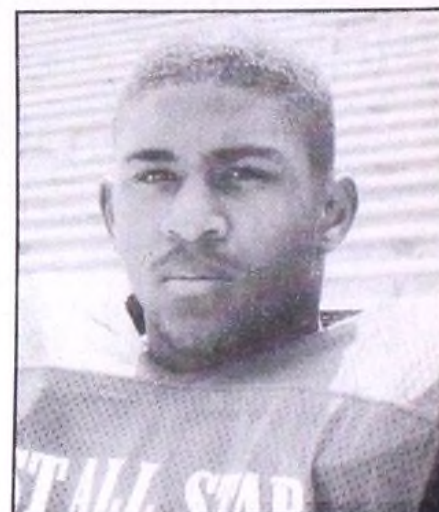

In the meantime, Christine Donaldson had her problems with U K Ikeh, in the Women's Over 20 Division. Ikeh came up with a stunning 6-1 victory in the opener, then blanked Do-

Area stars stand out

Two former local high school football standouts were featured in the lineup of the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association All-Star teams last week.

Ralph Truitt, who quarterbacked Belleville High School to the Tigers' best season in recent years in 1993, and Rob Shepley, a standout at Plymouth-Salem a year ago, played for the East Stars in the annual summer classic staged last week at Spartan Stadium in East Lansing.

Hall of Fame 5 outstanding coaches to be honored

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Their names are synonymous with outstanding coaching.

They helped build the Wayne-Westland area into one of the finest athletic competitors in the state, and some of their proteges went on to star in the colleges and universities of the nation.

Although they have left the high school sports stage, their names have not been forgotten.

And, on Aug. 9, former coaching greats Gordie Davis, Dale Butler, Bob Lusk, and Marcy Weston will be honored and inducted into the Wayne-Westland Athletic Hall of Fame.

"We're proud that these coaches, and inducting these veteran coaches into the Hall is just a small token of our appreciation for what they have done for the young athletes in the area and our communities," said Bill T. Sexton, program director.

"The Wayne-Westland area has produced some outstanding athletes and this could not have been made possible without the coaching that these people provided."

Lusk laid the foundation for some of the best prep wrestling teams in the state at Westland John Glenn High School.

Butler coached Wayne Memorial High School football teams, while Davis, before he retired, won a dozen or more basketball titles as head basketball coach at Glenn.

"We're proud that these coaches, and inducting these veteran coaches into the hall is just a small token of our appreciation..."

- Bill T. Sexton

Weston is remembered as a topnotch volleyball coach and NCAA delegate at Central Michigan University.

The Hall will also honor members of Daly's Softball Team that dominated the softball diamonds in the area and state during the 1960s.

The Hall of Fame has previously inducted some 29 other athletes and coaches from the Wayne-Westland School District area. The plaques of the inductees are on display at Jake's Lounge in Wayne, where the ceremonies will again be conducted.

"The induction is open to the public," Weston stressed.

The installation will be staged at Jake's, located on Wayne Road, one block north of Michigan Avenue.

Weston also encouraged residents who have nominations for future inductees to contact him. Forms are available to the public for nominating potential candidates.

For more information about the Hall of Fame or the ceremonies, contact Sexton at 722-8942.

naldson 6-0 to win the title. Over in the boys' 13-15 age group, older brother, Dan Gabrys had to battle three sets before winning the first-place trophy from Ben Gabrys. Dan won the opener 6-3, then struggled as Ben came back and rallied to a 6-4 victory. However, Danny put away his opponent 6-2 for the decisive win in the finals.

In the boys' 16-19 division, Harry Lee coasted past finalist Tad Patterson in a pair of sets. The champ posted a 6-1 victory in the first set then beat his foe 6-4 in the second.

A heated duel was staged for the men's 20-29 title as Dave Verderbar stunned Bob other golfers will become alternates in order of finish.

And only golfers who are bona fide residents may represent a city on the team that advances to the state tournament.

The first round of competition is scheduled for Saturday (Aug. 6) with the finals to be played the following day.

The top three golfers in each of the flights will be awarded trophies. There is also a medalist (low scorer) trophy for the entire field. Additional flights will be organized only if the number of golfers from a city warrants it.

Wayne golfers also will be playing for the Patrolman Leonard J. Anderson Memorial Traveling Trophy. That trophy is awarded to the Wayne golfer who wins the city title in Wayne.

Patrolman Anderson was the first Wayne officer to be slain in the line of duty. He was killed in May, 1974 answering a domestic violence call.

If there is a tie for a trophy, the golfers involved will wage a sudden death playoff to determine the winner.

First-round tee-times accompany this story. If you have entered and do not find your name, please contact the ANP Sports Desk (729-4000) before 5 p.m. on Friday. Please ask for Staff Writer Tom Mooradian.

Breach in the first set 6-1. However, he was stung 6-4 as Breach fought back to force the issue to a third set. In the finale, it was Verderbar again, 6-1 for the championship.

Dave Verderbar apparently had the winning touch in the 30-39 age bracket as well as he clashed with Randy Whatley in the championship round and defeated his rival. Whatley surrendered the title to his opponent after losing, 6-2 and 6-4.

Whatley came back, however, to post a 6-3 and 6-4 victory over Theo Ulinfun to walk off the Canton courts with the first-place trophy for the men's 50-49 age group.

Truitt, a 6-2, 200-pound defensive back, and Shepley, a 6-2, 230-pound defensive lineman, turned in outstanding performances, but East couldn't stop a determined West All-Star team that managed to break the a five-year winless drought by shutting out their counterparts, 20-0.

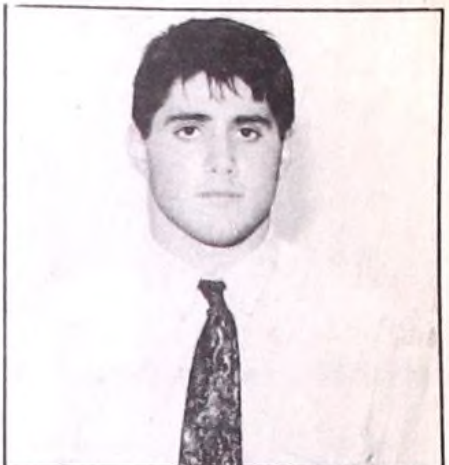

"It was a good game," said Belleville coach Bob LaPointe,

"however, the East just couldn't get their offense going."

LaPointe said that the area was "well-represented with Truitt and Shepley. They played well."

Truitt and Shepley also were members of the 1993 All-Area Football squad picked by The Associated Newspapers sports staff.

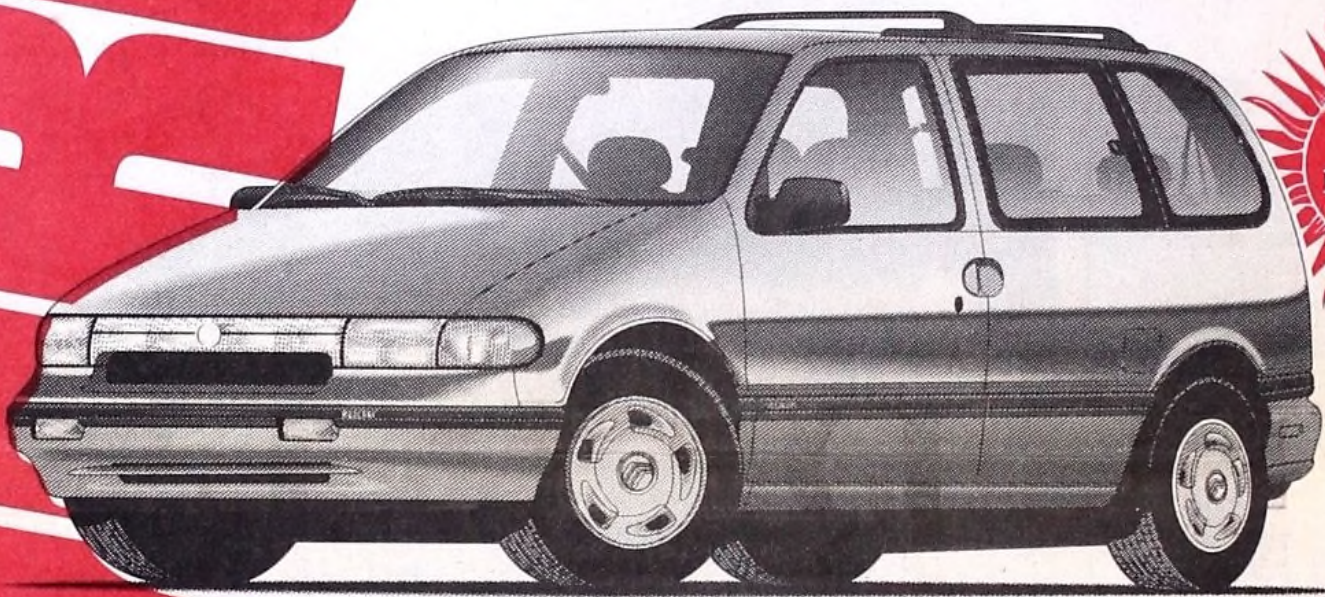

In the 14th year, the All-Star football classic features the cream of the crop of high school players.

Lassie owners share stories of heroic rescues

They didn't beg for popcorn, never asked to leave the theater to use the restroom and certainly didn't talk during the movie.

The rather unusual audience members at the premiere of a new summer film at Showcase Cinema in Westland were better behaved, overall, than many far more typical movie goers, even though these four-footed viewers did bark a bit when their movie heroine finally triumphed over all adversity to return to her home.

Yep, it was the first local showing of Lassie and in celebration of the 50th anniversary of the original Lassie Come Home, members of the Tri-County Collie Rescue League took the opportunity to promote their cause.

League President Gretchen Alaniz was more than pleased with the public response to the appearance of the dogs at the Showcase Cinemas and received a number of requests for Collie adoptions. The adopted Collies appeared at the Wayne Road theaters in Westland at and five other Showcase Cinemas around the state. The new owners attended the event with their special friends and recounted the circumstances which led to the individual rescues of the dogs.

petting one dog at the same time," Alaniz said. "We couldn't have asked for better help there. It was a really good experience," Alaniz said.

"There was one child who after seeing the scene where Lassie struggles down the waterfall, was so upset the parent had to bring the boy out of the theater to see the Collies were ok," Alaniz said.

The event generated $640 for the rescue operation and more importantly "got the word out" about the league, according to Alaniz.

The Collie League, a non-profit organization started in 1986, has placed more 500 abandoned Collies in new homes. The group has no facility, but rather is made up of dedicated individuals who want to make a difference for these homeless dogs.

Members of the group clean and groom the dogs, obtain proper medical attention and find a new home for the animals. They also take them into their own homes as foster owners.

While the dog is at the foster home, it is treated by a veterinarian, given a lot of care, vaccinated against disease and has its temperament examined and is housebroken if necessary.

"Collies have a very good temperament, but once in a while we find aggressive dogs. These dogs have either been trained to attack or were severely abused," Alaniz said.

Foster owners do not pay for anything, Alaniz said. They are provided with everything they need by the league, including dog food which is donated by Farmer Jack grocery stores.

Westland Veterinary Hospital provides the group with discounted services for the rescued Collies. The savings range from 25 percent on up and include every service from shots to surgery, according to manager Debbie Masse.

The Collie group also provides a lost and found service for Collie owners headed up by Nancy Flowers of Westland. Flowers makes a record of the description of lost Collies and reunites animals with owners through the Collie League.

"I take the information and wait for phone calls regarding found Collies," Flowers said adding that she also checks advertisements in newspapers to help searching owners.

Flowers has been involved with the League for six years, serving as a foster owner and working as an adoption agent to find animals new homes. According to Flowers, league workers are often individuals who work full and part time jobs and put in a lot of extra hours helping out the abandoned animals.

"Fostering and adopting animals out is real stressful. We get so many in and beg, borrow and steal to get a dog somewhere to stay," Flowers said.

Most rescued Collies are strays or are picked up from the dog pound, however, some owners call the league and ask to have their Collies picked up because they no longer want them or are able to care for them.

"We work closely with the Westland-Humane Society — they have been very eager to work with us," Flowers said.

The League president added that some dog pounds only sell Collies for research, but Tri-County Collie was able to save one of these dog along with its nine puppies which were Springer/Collie mix breeds.

"We did a relay race. Someone in Midland picked up the dogs and met someone in Pinkney," Alaniz said. "All the puppies were filled to the brim with worms and we lost one puppy the first day. The mother was so malnourished that she couldn't nurse. She had just a day left before she was off to research," Alaniz said.

The dogs were given medical treatment and were all adopted out, including the adult female.

According to Flowers, the reasons for dog abandonment range from not being able to take the dog to a new location to not having enough room in the owner's apartment or mobile home. Other reasons include divorce, the arrival of newborns, allergies, etc.

"We get every story in the world. One woman said her husband didn't like the yellow spots in the grass," according to Livonia resident Lee Patton, who was an adoption agent for the Collie League and owns a Collie herself.

Patton said she is a "real stickler" for Collie adopters to have fenced-in yards.

"There are a lot of people who get puppies in the summer months and take them out for walks every day and the minute cold weather comes they stop," Patton said, adding that they receive the majority of Collies during the winter months.

According to Patton, the potential Collie adopters are interviewed by phone and then come visit the foster home where they get a look at the animal, however, she added, they don't leave with the dog.

"It gives you an out if you're not interested in that particular Collie," Patton said. "We want you to be 100 percent sure and have the chance to do our evaluation (of the potential adopter)."

The fee to adopt a Collie is $100 and once the animals are adopted out, the league still keeps in contact with the new owners.

In her six years of adoptive services, Patton has seen some strange rescue cases.

One animal that was abandoned at an area drug house would only eat pizza.

"It took us some time to get the dog off pizza. We couldn't adopt the dog out because no one could afford to feed it," Patton said.

Another case involved a Collie strapped to a poll with a sign that read "Take me home."

Alaniz remembered one case in which a Collie they rescued was in such bad shape that it was completely matted from head to toe, was flea infested, had glass embedded in its skin and insect bites all over its face.

"It took a good three weeks of bathing, brushing and clipping to fix the dog up. We get so many in that are completely neglected," Alaniz said.

The group, which has 50 members, is one of the largest Collie rescues in the state and adopts out an average of 14 to 16 dogs every two months, with Collies remaining in foster homes from two weeks to a month. Collie adoptions are at an all time high this year, Alaniz added, exceeding 100 animal placements.

Alaniz, who has two Collies of her own and has fostered 30 dogs in three years, said there is always a need for new foster homes for the rescued dogs. With some 100 dogs rescued yearly, only two or three are actually euthanized, Alaniz said, and these cases are due to the severe medical condition of the animals.

"We weigh the benefit of saving one dog compared to more," Alaniz said.

"One 10-month-old dog had a severe mange problem and the expense was too much.

Half of its body was eaten away on both sides and it became violently ill," Patton said.

"In one case, a Collie stray was turned into rescue with a deformed leg with the bone protruding from the skin, causing the dog pain when it walked. This dog had a good temperament so we decided to go ahead with the surgery."

Another adopted dog, blind since birth, was adopted out to be a sheep herding dog.

"Most sheep herding is done by sight, but this dog goes by sound," Alaniz said.

Judie and Earl Ford of Westland have owned a total of four Collies and fostered four as well. The Fords purchased their original two pups from a breeder and after both died, they decided to try fostering. From the fostering activity, the Fords adopted two more Collies.

"After the second dog died, we missed them. We're just Collie people," Judie Ford said.

Their first adopted dog was 3 years old and was given to the organization by a breeder who was not satisfied with the number of puppies in each of the Collies' litters, Judie Ford said. Their second dog came from Huron Valley Animal Shelter in Ann Arbor. Ford said she was pleased that both dogs were house trained and responded to commands without having to be taught.

Tri-County Collie Rescue is having a picnic to invite back all the adopted Collies and their owners in cooperation with Midwest Collie Club. The fourth annual Collie Day is a fun and educational outing for children, puppies and adults which will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Aug. 6 at Lower Huron Metropark, Fox Woods Picnic area. Travelers should enter the park at the main entrance directly south of the I-94/Haggerty Road exit in Belleville. For more information, call Lee at 810-522-8405 or Eileen at 810-468-9779.

Long-time community volunteer John Reddy dead at 78

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

When John and May Reddy had all four of their sons enrolled at St. Mary's Catholic School in Wayne during the early 50s, the family often joked that he spent as much time at the convent as did the nuns

"Every day, and I mean every day, they would send a note home about one of us--Don't come back to school until your father has been here--and every day, he'd go.

"They could have just mimeographed those notes for us--and every day he'd just shake his head and go up to the school. I never heard him swear and I never heard him raise his voice. He was always supportive and he always explained why we needed to behave," said Mr. Reddy's son, Tom Taylor.

Mr. Reddy, 78, a well-known and long-time community volunteer, died Friday of natural causes at Hotel Dieu Hospital in Windsor, Ontario.

Obviously, Mr. Reddy's parenting philosophy was effective. Along with his wife May, he is survived by Taylor, a former mayor of Westland.

Westland Assistant Police Chief John Reddy, Jr.; Westland Assistant Fire Chief Michael Reddy and David Reddy; two daughters, Maureen Reddy and Sheila Rogers; brother, Martin Joseph, and sister, Jean Flannery.

Reddy is also survived by 24 grandchildren, 16 great-grandchildren and one great-great grandchild. Two of his grandsons also serve on the Westland Fire Department.

A faithful Catholic, Mr. Reddy began ushering at St. Mary's Church in Wayne and continued to usher for St. Richard's Church in Westland until his death.

Mr. Reddy and his family moved to Nankin Township/ Westland in 1945 where he raised his six children on Barton Street. In the 1960s, the family moved to a home on Avondale where Mr. Reddy and wife have lived ever since.

While holding down a full-time job on the assembly line at Ford Motor Co., raising a family and continuing his volunteer and church work, Mr. Reddy began his college education.

"He decided he wanted more than that (assembly line work)," Taylor said.

Thus began a 14-year education in which Mr. Reddy earned metallurgical and electrical engineering degrees. As a metallurgical engineer at Ford Motor Co., Mr. Reddy calibrated radar and sonar equipment on the oar boats which brought steel to the factories. He also performed quality control work, visiting small steel mills around the country when they had difficulties meeting Ford quality standards.

"He went to school two nights a week for 14 years. When he was done the man could do calculus over the telephone. When I was in college, I'd call him with complicated problems and he'd give me the formulas from memory while I was struggling to understand them from the textbook," Taylor said.

Mr. Reddy was one of the founders of the Wayne-Ford Civic League in Westland, which has provided recreational activities since the 1940s when Westland was a part of Nankin Township.

Appointed to the Wayne-Westland Community Schools Board of Education, Mr. Reddy served one term. He was very active and served in a number of offices in the Westland Goodfellows and in Wayne and Westland Democratic grassroots political organizations.

Mr. Reddy died of a heart attack following an annual golf outing of former Ford Motor Co. employees in Canada.

Funeral services were conducted at St. Richard's Catholic Church on Tuesday. Interment was at Cadillac Memorial Gardens West in Westland.

The family has requested that memorial contributions be sent to the Westland Goodfellows in care of Westland City Hall, 36601 Ford Road, Westland, Mich. 48185.

YOUR LOCAL GUIDE TO CHIROPRACTIC HEALTH CARE

A family trait

Father and son join forces to aid area patients

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

People often think of chiropractors as doctors who treat back pain, but these doctors also aid patients with several illnesses ranging from asthma to cancer, according to Dr. Kevin J. O'Dell of O'Dell Chiropractic Life Center in Westland.

"All of us have sick cells that die and the body generates new ones. When you lose your ability to do that at a proper rate you get cancer," O'Dell said, adding that the spinal cord can be checked for interruptions and adjusted to treat the disease.

The 24-year-old chiropractor just recently joined his father, Dr. James O'Dell at the Westland center, located at 1214 S. Wayne Road between Cherry Hill and Palmer roads. After six years of study at Life Chiropractic College in Marietta, Georgia, the young doctor became a third generation chiropractor. His grandfather, Dr. Clair O'Dell, started the family-owned business at the current Southgate location in 1936. The Westland location was opened in 1968.

"I've been adjusted all my life. I've grown up and seen people getting help by checking their spine, without all the surgery and drugs," O'Dell said. "I've never had a shot or pill in my life -- I've just been adjusted. There's a need for medicine, but mostly drugs are over-used," he added.

According to O'Dell, there are some 20,000 known diseases today and practically every one of these illnesses can be treated by chiropractic.

"Eighty to 90 percent of our successes are because of medical failures. So many people don't think to go to the chiropractor first," O'Dell said. "Medicine and chiropratics have different objectives, he said, "we're (chiropractors) not treating a disease, we're working with people."

The practitioner gave examples of how migraines, menstrual cramps, allergies and other common ailments can be treated with a simple adjustment of the vertebra.

"The brain and spinal cord are one big unit ... which branches out to every part of your body," O'Dell explained.

According to the doctor, the bony parts of the spine become misaligned and this irritates the nerves. Over time, O'Dell said, this irritation can lead to serious illness.

"If you have an interruption to your nervous system, you can't be healthy. It's like misaligned tires. You could be driving for years and then one day your front axle breaks," the chiropractor said.

According to O'Dell, all illnesses come from within the body. He gave examples of how breathing difficulties relating to asthma and allergies can be treated with chiropratics.

"We all breath in the same air, the same pollen," however, O'Dell added, "some people's systems produce all these extra chemicals ... when the nerves are cut off."

The doctor said the nervous system is in essence like a garden hose.

"When the hose is cut off, the plants die," he said, "and we try all different chemicals to keep them alive when all we really need to do is for us to take our foot off the hose."

The center is open from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Fridays, from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 and 3 to 7 p.m. Thursdays, and from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays. Health talks are offered once a week from 7 to 8 p.m. Thursdays. For further information, call 728-8100.

Good Food offers alternative to grocery shopping

By MARGO DEWEY
Deputy News Editor

With health care costs skyrocketing, it's no wonder people are searching for a healthier lifestyle which includes eating better and exercising.

But grocery stores can sometimes be a source of confusion about what foods really are good for health. Label reading is only a minute aspect of selecting nutritional food.

It also takes a little research to determine the health value, such as finding out which food has been sprayed with pesticides or the various cooking methods to maintaining the nutritional value.

A natural food supermarket in Canton Township, however, has taken the burden off of the customer by providing an entire store full of organic naturally grown food.

Good Food Co., 42615 Ford Road, provides area residents with an easy one-stop-shopping method for purchasing organic food as an alternative to commercially grown groceries and produce.

Sandra John, general manager for Good Food Co., said, "Good Food is based on the idea that organic Sandra John said organic food is not only healthier, but it also tastes good.

food is not only good for you, but it also tastes good.

"Sometimes people who haven't purchased this type of food before are concerned about the taste, and when they do try it, they are surprised that it not only tastes good but often even better than they thought," John said.

The philosophy of Good Food Co. is: "Good Food is dedicated to providing alternatives to traditional food stores and ways of thinking. We advocate no one particular way of eating or thinking, but rather present choices for individuals to choose for themselves."

What is considered organic? Since World War II, farmers have been dependent on substances called agri-chemicals to help provide nutrients for growing plants, control weeds, pests and disease, and prepare products to be shipped and sold.

These products are derived from petroleum and are potentially toxic, according to brochures provided by Good Food Co. in the store. Organic farming is done without these agri-chemicals.

"It is a natural way of growing food in harmony with the environment and builds a solid nutritional foundation of the foods we eat," according to John.

"We provide a lot of products that are whole grain," John said. "We have products that are naturally sweetened. We have a juice bar that I think is the best in the country. Some of the items we provide at the juice bar include smoothies, a wide variety of fruit juices and Gise (frozen soft-served products)."

John said as consumers become better educated as to the nutritional value of food, they will also become more selective and demanding as to what they would like to purchase in grocery stores.

"Our customers consist of women and men of all ages who not only purchase organic food for themselves, but for their families so they are always concerned about what is in the food and the best way to prepare various meals," John said. "We have a taste test here every Tuesday where we have the customers try various products. It gives us a good idea of what they like."

Good Food Co. houses many of the needed food items families use on a daily basis including fruit, juice, bread, chips and vitamins. In addition to the juice bar, there is also a fresh bakery area where Kira Power creates baked goods fresh every day.

"I bake five days a week, and everything here is fresh for the customers," Power said. "Some of the favorite selections are the oatmeal raisin and chocolate chip with rice and barley cookies. I also make a delicious pineapple low-fat cake."

Good Food Co. also has natural cruelty-free cosmetics, a library of nutrition books for any health-conscious individual and a wide selection of organic coffee.

John said a restaurant deli, is being constructed inside the grocery store and is expected to be open next month. It will be a full-service establishment offering many hot entrees including chicken and fish.

"We have low fat and no fat items at Good Food," John said. "It's not to say that everything we carry is all low in calories, but the ingredients are natural. Our selection here at Good Food is greater than anywhere else."

"We welcome customers to ask our knowledgeable staff about any of our products. We even have a customer service area to help customers find their favorite items."

Good Food Inc. "was born and raised in Michigan" by creator by Patricia Breen in 1983, according to John. The store originated in Livonia.

Good Food Inc. is open 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday. For more information about organic products call Good Food officials at 981-8100.

Jary's Chiropractic is dedicated to providing clients natural treatment to health problems

Jary Chiropractic, 27527 Joy Road in Westland, is dedicated to the good health of the entire family of patients.

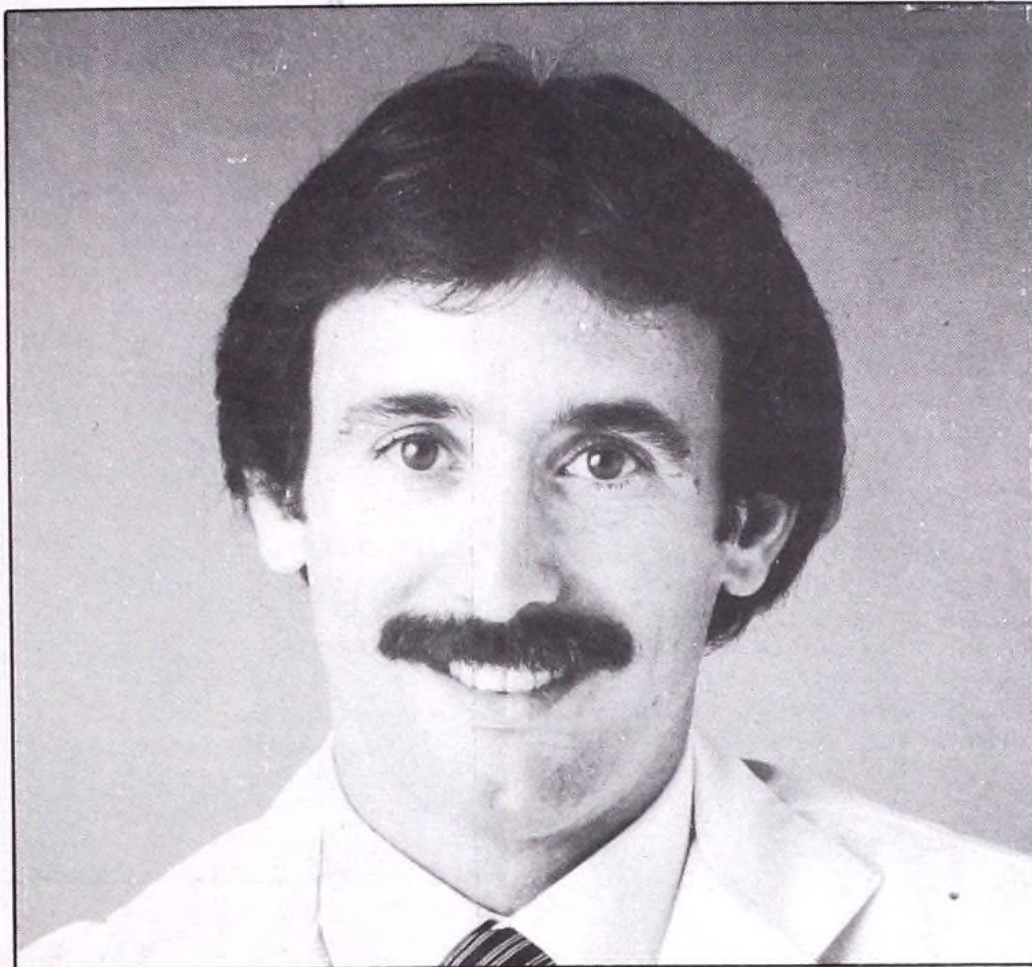

"Having been in practice for 14 years, I have had the opportunity of treating many people from every walk of life with a variety of ailments," said Dr. Eugene Jary. "Many times these patients have either not responded to traditional medicine or are tired of taking drugs."

"They are referred to our clinic by family members or friends who responded well to our care. We then have the privilege of introducing these people to chiropractic."

Chiropractic health care deals with locating vertebrae (spinal bones) that are out of position compressing or pinching nerve roots resulting in many symptoms or signals, according to Jary.

These symptoms (signals) are the bodies alarm systems operating the way they were meant to.

"If the smoke alarm sounds in your house do you turn up the radio, take out the batteries (treat the symptom) or correct the cause of the problem," Jary said. "The answer is obvious. Why then is the answer not obvious when our bodies alarms are sounding? Why do we squelch the alarm by taking a drug or trying to ignore it hoping it will go away? This will allow it to snowball into a bigger problem."

Chiropractic care puts out the fire by getting to the cause of the problem. Releasing the pressure from the compressed nerve by gently moving the misaligned vertebrae back to its normal position corrects the problem and the body's alarms (symptoms) will automatically shut themselves off.

"More people sought the help of non-M.D. providers in 1993 than in any other year," Jary said. "This shows a dissatisfaction with traditional medicine and a shift towards a natural or holistic approach to health."

"I would like to invite anyone whose alarms are sounding, or are on drugs masking their symptoms, to call our clinic for an appointment or a consultation to see if chiropractic care is what you have been looking for all along."

Jary said he has a friendly, well-trained staff to answer any questions that you may have regarding health insurance or to set up a payment plan that is affordable.

Bio-Spine Chiropractic Center, located at 36167 Ford Road, Westland, specializes in the treatment of low back pain. Clinic improves communication between patient's body and brain

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Health care for the whole body continues to be the goal of Karl's Chiropractic Clinic of Westland.

Dr. William Karl, who has been operating in the area of 30935 Ann Arbor Trail for the past 13 years, revealed that he concentrates on improving communication between his patient's brain and body.

Patients are offered free consultations on their health conditions. They also are invited to hour-long health care workshops from 7 until 8 p.m. every other Wednesday.

At the workshops patients are taught various exercises that will help strengthen their bodies and/or alleviate health conditions.

Karl said chiropractic services are offered for numerous health conditions impacting the spine.

"The youngest patient I ever served was 1 day old," Karl explained, "and the oldest are in their late 80s."

Karl explained it is not a wise situation to allow a spinal or other health condition to deteriorate. "It makes it tougher to correct a problem if you allow scar tissue to build up around the affected part," he said. "The earlier a problem is attended to, the easier it is to fix."

A first visit can last from one and a half to three hours, as X rays are taken and an evaluation is made of the patient's health conditions and explanations are given on treatment needed for the alleviation of the pain and/or problem.

"The patient is also given a list of options he or she can take, as well as nutritional counseling," he said.

After that normal visits can last from two to 20 minutes depending on the needs of the day, Karl said.

Many patients need treatment for minor misalignments of the bones of the spine, Karl explained, that cause nerve interference and loss of health.

Karl earned his doctor of chiropractic degree from Sherman College in South Carolina.

"Most health insurance plans today cover X rays and adjustments," Karl said.

He has since completed numerous continuing education sessions and stated he constantly searches out information on upgrades in chiropractic care.

Dr. William Karl

The office hours for Karl's Chiropractic Clinic are from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays and from 8 a.m. to noon on Saturdays.
